Bulletin 31 is a catalogue of West Virginia Scolytidae? and their enemies, but it is also something more than a catalogue. It gives rearing records and brief tabular accounts of the habits of 80 species of Scolytidae and of 88 species of the natural enemies of these destructive beetles. Bulletin 32, which comprises a catalogue of the West Virginia forest and shade-tree insects, is naturally more extensive, and covers some 75 pages, giving rearing records of no less than 404 species. The bulletins are well printed upon good quality of paper, but are somewhat marred by the results of inexpert proof-reading. Orange Insects in Louisiana....
