Thomas B. Macaulay was born in England, October 25, 1800. His parents resided at Clapham, a suburb of London, and here Macaulay spent the first few years of his life. His fond mother writes concerning him: My dear Tom continues to show marks of uncommon genius. He gets on wonderfully in all branches of his education, and the extent of his reading, and the knowledge he has derived from it, are truly astonishing in a boy not yet eight years old. At that early period he wrote a short compendium of universal history, and a youthful poem in imitation of Scott s Marmion, which he knew nearly by heart. Among the friends of the family was Miss Hannah More, who took a deep interest in the bright, intelligent lad. Though you are a little boy now, she writes, you will one day, if it please God, be a man; but long before you are a man I hope you will be a scholar. I therefore wish you to purchase such books as will be useful and agreeable to you then, and that you employ this very small sum in laying a little tiny corner-stone for your future library. After a few years at a private school, Macaulay was entered, at the age of eighteen, as a student of Trinity College, Cambridge. His time was well spent, but he did not take the highest honors, as he did not excel in mathematics, which is the special study of that place. In the ancient Latin and Greek authors he was at home, and his love of them clung to him to the last. His...
